Wedding Party: Etiquette dictates that married women in the wedding party are most properly identified as Mrs. John Doe, not Mrs. Jane Doe. Some brides, however, prefer a less formal approach, listing attendants simply as Jane Doe, Sally Smith, etc. The Mercury will accept either formal or casual designations, however consistency must be maintained throughout. If the casual form of address is used, please indicate whether the bride's honor attendant is maid of honor (never married) or matron of honor (currently or formerly married). In noting family relationships, please specify clearly whether the member of the wedding is related to the bride or the bridegroom, such as "brother of the bride." Simply writing "brother" is not sufficient.
